GETTING STARTED

Do your homework!

- Start with what you know and work backwards. Note basic facts such as when and where you, your parents and grandparents were born.

- Talk to family and friends as they will remember useful snippets of information. Make a note of what each person tells you as accounts may differ. You can refer to your notes to verify your research and fill in gaps.

- Look for other sources at home: Family Bibles may contain details of births, marriages and deaths. Look on the back of old photographs for names, dates and places. Many people keep certificates, news-cuttings and other mementoes to remind them of significant events. Think where you keep these things and check attics, wardrobes, old shoeboxes, etc.

- Check family gravestone inscriptions for names and vital dates – your local council may have access to a searchable database.

- Gather the paperwork, eg, birth, death and marriage certificates. Civil certificates can be obtained from the General Register Office.

Key information is:

- Names – often repeated within families: check the given names of grandparents, uncles, etc. for a common family name. Remember, spelling was not standard in the past and variations in the spelling of surnames are common.
• Dates: dates of significant events, eg, birth, marriage, death. Date of emigration, if relevant, is helpful.

• Places – the area your family came from is very important, a place name is vital to locate records such as church registers. Note references to townland names, parishes and counties.

Remember, it is not vital to have all of this detail to begin with, but the more information you can gather, the better you will be able to target your research. These few basic facts will help you to be more selective when you are ready to Go Online!

FIRST STEPS IN PRONI

Where you start your research in PRONI depends on the information you have been able to gather.

1. What if I have no relatives to ask and little or no information on my family?

   - Start with the PRONI eCatalogue available either in the Search Room or on-line at www.nidirect.gov.uk/proni. Searchable by keyword, phrase or reference number, the eCatalogue search results provide names, dates, locations and some information on the documents.

   - Try PRONI Names Search and other databases including Will Calendars, Ulster Covenant, Freeholders and Street Directories – all link names and places.

   - Look at the 1901 or 1911 Census freely available at www.nationalarchives.ie

   - Try Griffith’s Valuation, a record of householders from c. 1860, also a free site available at www.askaboutireland.ie

2. If I know that my family has always lived in a particular area, what are the best sources for me?

   - All of the sources listed above will be useful.

   - Church records: registers of baptisms, marriages and sometimes burials. Pinpoint the parish to limit your search (more straightforward for rural areas than cities or towns where there can be many churches in a relatively small area). Check the PRONI Guide to Church Records, listing records by parish, available on our website.

   - Search Room Geographical Index, only available on-site. The index, arranged by townlands, gives a PRONI reference number for records including the earliest valuation books and corresponding maps. Valuations were carried out on buildings and land to determine what rates should be paid. PRONI also holds the Valuation Revision records (PRONI ref VAL 12B) allowing researchers to track name changes for property ownership. This can point to a date of death or a family leaving the area.

   - Alphabetical Index to the Townlands and Towns, Parishes and Baronies of Ireland, in the PRONI Library to connect townlands and parishes.
Ireland was sub-divided in a particular way: counties into baronies, baronies into parishes, and parishes into townlands. The townland is a unique feature of the Irish landscape and is one of the most ancient divisions in the country. Other divisions to look out for are Poor Law Unions (PLU), administrative divisions for the Workhouse system and District Electoral Divisions (DED), which can be needed to locate some records. The Geographical index available on the PRONI website is a helpful guide to understanding and locating administrative divisions within Northern Ireland.

- Note the townland, parish and names of other divisions as this information will help you to locate other records as your research continues.

- Tithe Applotment Books, 1823–1837 are also place related (although cities and larger towns were excluded). These are available on microfilm in PRONI with an index at PRONI reference MIC 15K.

- School Registers are available at PRONI ref SCH.

What if I Cannot Come to PRONI

If you are unable to visit us in person, you can still make use of the PRONI eCatalogue, guides, indexes and databases and links to other sites available on our website.

PRONI can also undertake specific searches for a fee. You must put your request for a copy or a search in writing (e-mail is fine). We cannot provide a comprehensive research service but a list of commercial researchers operating in Northern Ireland who undertake this work can be obtained from PRONI and is available on our website. Please note the commercial researchers listed do not work for PRONI, we cannot recommend any particular person or organisation, nor can we be held responsible for the standard of their work, or for any qualification or title they may claim to hold.

Further information on search options, together with details of the copying service, can be found on the PRONI website: www.nidirect.gov.uk/proni.
1901 is the earliest and most complete surviving census of Ireland. 1901 and 1911 census records have been digitised by The National Archives of Ireland (custodians of the original census forms) and are freely available on-line at www.nationalarchives.ie

Census records can be used to find a date of birth for people born before the introduction of Civil Registration in Ireland in 1864, for example someone aged 51 in 1901 would have been born in 1850 – 14 years before birth certificates were available. The early 19th century census records also provide information on people who were born before the Great Famine.

What is recorded?

All those in the house at the time were included. This means that servants, lodgers, boarders and even visiting friends are listed but members of the family, away from home on the day were not included with the other family members. The census, gathered on 31 March 1901 and 2 April 1911, recorded the following:

First name
Surname
Relationship to the head of the household
Religious denomination
Literacy level
Age
Gender
Occupation
Marital status
Place of birth
Ability to speak or write Irish
Specified disabilities
The 1911 census asked married women to state the number of years they had been married, the number of their children born alive and the number still living. This is a pointer towards the year of marriage and to children not surviving at the time of the census.

Using the Census

The returns for each townland or street are:

- Form A – filled in by the head of each household, giving the names of all people in that household on census night and their age, occupation, religion and place of birth. There should be a separate form for each household.

- Forms N, B1 and B2 were filled in by the official taking the census, summarising the returns for each townland or street.

- Form N is the enumerator’s abstract for a townland or street;
- Form B1 summarises the houses and buildings;
- Form B2 is a summary of the outhouses and farmsteads;
- Form B3 is a shipping return.
- Forms C is a return of the sick at their own homes
- Form D is a return of lunatics not in institutions

Forms E – K are institutional returns for example, workhouses, hospitals, asylums, barracks etc and in these cases many names are indexed by initials only. The information on the form (place of birth, occupation and marital status should help you to confirm the identity of the person you are looking for.

- Form E is a return of inmates in the workhouse;
- Form F is a return of those in hospital;
- Form G, those at college and boarding school;
- Form H, the military, Royal Irish Constabulary and Metropolitan Police in barracks;
- Form I lunatics in institutions and private lunatic asylums;
- Form K is a return of those confined in prisons, bridewells and police stations.
Missing Townlands/Streets

A number of townlands/streets do not appear in the online census for 1901 and 1911, in most cases this material has never been microfilmed and so was not digitised. This will explain a nil return in some cases.

Census on Microfilm

Microfilm copies of the original census returns for 1901 are held at PRONI, Ref. MIC354.
Church records are of particular value to anyone interested in tracing their family tree as they usually contain the registers of baptisms, marriages and burials, many of which pre-date civil registration (see General Register Office leaflet). Communion rolls, vestry minutes, account books, etc. can be equally useful, especially as they often pre-date the registers. Most of the Church records are on microfilm (PRONI reference MIC), available in the Self Service Microfilm Reading Room. Others, however, are not available on microfilm (usually those with the CR reference) and these can be ordered via the computer terminals in the Search Room and consulted in the Main Reading Room. In many cases only those Church records pre-dating 1900 have been copied or deposited.

The Guide to Church Records is an easy way to identify what churches are in a parish, what records exist for each church, the covering dates for each series of records and what the PRONI reference number is. Normally, there will be churches relating to more than one denomination in each parish and these can be identified in the Guide in alphabetical order by the following codes:

- B. = Baptist Church
- C.I. = Church of Ireland
- MOR. = Moravian Church
- P. = Presbyterian Church
- R.P. = Reformed Presbyterian Church
- C. = Congregational Church
- M. = Methodist Church
- N.S.P. = Non-Subscribing Presbyterian Church
- R.C. = Roman Catholic Church
- R.S.F. = Religious Society of Friends (Quakers)

Problems: There are, however, a number of problems associated with church records. For example, there can be gaps in the record where the registers did not survive or where the ink is so badly faded that the entries are impossible to read. Due to certain laws peculiar to Ireland, several denominations have no records pre-dating 1800. Changes in church or parish structure have resulted in some churches changing name – or even parish – thereby making it difficult to trace the records. Where records have neither been copied by, nor deposited in, PRONI, but remain in local custody (that is, held by the church), this is indicated in our Guide to Church Records (available on the Public Search Room shelves). If you wish to consult these records, you will have to make an application to the person in charge of the church.

Church of Ireland: The Church of Ireland was the Established Church in Ireland until disestablishment in 1871. Their baptism and burial records up to that date, and marriage registers before 1845, are public records and, as such, individual pages can be copied. Registers after that date, and all other types of records, remain the property of the Representative Church Body (RCB) and, while copies can be made of individual pages, complete reels of microfilm or entire volumes cannot be copied under any circumstances. Church of Ireland baptism records will often record the child’s name and the father’s full name as well as the mother’s maiden name. The majority of Church of Ireland clergymen also recorded burials as well as baptisms and marriages. Burial registers usually give the name and date of burial, the residence (normally only the townland) and the age of the deceased.

It is important to note that Church of Ireland registers often include local families of different denominations. PRONI also holds records for some churches in Cos Cavan, Donegal and Monaghan. (PRONI ref MIC/1/ and CR/1)

Roman Catholic Church: Roman Catholic registers do not start until the 1820s. Indeed many start much later than this. The registers are almost entirely of baptisms and marriages and those on microfilm relate to churches both within Northern Ireland and most of those in Cos Cavan, Donegal and Monaghan but only up to 1880. Roman Catholic baptism records usually include the date of baptism, the child’s name, the father’s name in full, the mother’s maiden name, the name of any godparents and the residence of the parents. Although some death or funeral entries do occur, these generally only record the name of the deceased and the date of death. As some of the entries in these registers are written in Latin, a separate leaflet on Latin terminology used in Roman Catholic Church registers is available in the Self-Service Microfilm Reading Room. Permission to copy must be obtained from the individual church (PRONI ref MIC/1D/ and CR/2)

Presbyterian Church: Presbyterianism came to Ulster from Scotland in the 17th century but, like the Roman Catholics, Presbyterians were restricted by law from fully practising their religion. This religious and civil persecution meant that some early baptisms, marriages and burials of Presbyterians will be found in the registers of the Church of Ireland, a practice that continued well into the 18th century. Burial registers for Presbyterian churches are uncommon as there were few Presbyterian burial grounds. Most records date from the early 19th century and those copied by PRONI cover most of the churches in Northern Ireland and in Cos Cavan, Donegal and Monaghan. Individual pages in registers of baptisms, marriages and burials can be copied but permission must be obtained from the individual Presbyterian church to get a copy of a complete reel of microfilm or an entire volume or to copy any record other than baptisms, marriages and burials that is less than 50 years old. (PRONI ref MIC/1P/ and CR/3)

Methodist: Methodism, as a separate denomination, did not emerge until 1816. The earliest baptism registers, therefore, date from then although the majority do not begin until the 1830s. Marriages registers generally only start in 1845. An important record is MIC/429/1. This is a microfilm copy of a large volume of baptism entries dating from 1815 to 1840 for Methodist churches throughout Ireland. This may have been an attempt to compile a central register of baptisms and, although incomplete, the baptisms recorded often pre-date existing individual church baptism registers. There are few Methodist burial registers because most Methodist churches did not have their own burial grounds. Permission to copy must be obtained from the individual Methodist Church. (PRONI ref MIC/1E/ and CR/6)

Baptist Church: There are few records before 1900. The earliest begin in the 1860s and consist of marriages and minute books. As the Baptist Church does not practice infant baptism, there are no infant baptism registers but details of those who came into membership of the church are be found in the minute books. The Baptist Church doesn’t have separate burial grounds so there are no burial registers. The documentary record is, therefore, relatively scanty, and what exists is held mainly by the individual churches or by the Baptist Union of Ireland in Belfast, although PRONI has copied the records of Coleraine Baptist Church. Permission to copy must be obtained from the individual Baptist Church. (PRONI ref MIC/1H/)

Other Denominations: Although PRONI holds records relating to other denominations, the quantity and quality vary depending on the particular church:

The Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) records are excellent and in most instances are continuous from the late 17th century. PRONI has copied those of the Meeting Houses at Lisburn, Lurgan, Ballyhagen, Richhill, Grange, Charlemont and Cootetihill. Permission from the Society to copy is only necessary for records that are less than 50 years old. (See MIC/16 and CR/8)

Moravian Church records copied by PRONI include those of congregations at Gracehill, Kilwarlin, Ballinderry, Belfast and Dublin, most dating back to the mid-18th century. Permission to copy must be obtained from the Moravian Church. (PRONI ref MIC/1F and CR/9)
Congregational Church records date mainly from the 1880s, though there are a few earlier than this, and consist of baptism and marriage registers and minute books for churches in Northern Ireland and in Dublin. Permission to copy must be obtained from the individual Congregational Church. (PRONI ref MIC/1G and CR/7)

Non-Subscribing Presbyterian Church records include one of the earliest session minute books, that of Templepatrick, dating from 1646, and PRONI has copied other records. Permission to copy must be obtained from the individual Non-Subscribing Presbyterian Church. (PRONI ref MIC/IB and CR/4)

INTRODUCTION

PRONI holds records relating to the valuation of property in Northern Ireland from the 1830s to 1993. Following the valuations in the 1830s and 1860s, re-valuations were done in 1935, 1956, 1975 and 1993. The original purpose was, and still remains, the assessment of every building and every piece of land and an estimation of its financial value. The valuation is, in theory, the amount that an owner would expect to receive if they hired out their property for one year. The valuation of a property is subsequently used in assessing the rates to be paid.

The levying of a rate in Ireland, to raise money to meet the costs of local government, dates from 1635. An Act of that year gave Justices of the Peace power to levy certain sums, known as the County Cess or Grand Jury Cess, upon the inhabitants of a locality for the execution of public works such as the building of roads and bridges. By 1824 Parliament recognised the need for a more equitable method of measuring liability for cess and rates. The First Valuation Act was introduced in 1826, and a valuation of the whole of Ireland was prepared. Not all land and property, however, was subject to rates: national schools, for example, and glebe land (land belonging to the Church), or land too poor or stony to be worth anything, were all excluded. The information given in the valuation books usually includes the name of the tenant, the person or organisation from whom they leased the land, the acreage and the rateable value.

THE TOWNLAND VALUATION (VAL/1B)

The Townland Valuation of 1828-40 was primarily a valuation of land but with a valuation of certain houses, initially houses with an annual value of £3 or more. From 1838 this was increased to £5. The majority of parishes in Ulster had been valued before 1838 so many more houses were included in the valuation of property in Ulster than for the rest of the country. Details of the ownership and nature of the buildings can be found at the end of the land valuation for each townland but more detailed descriptions of the buildings will be found at the end of each volume, arranged by townland. The Townland Valuation should not, therefore, be ignored by family historians. Containing as it does many personal names, it is an invaluable source of information on the nature and physical condition of buildings, including mills and factories, and on the nature and scope of pre-Famine agriculture. The maps that accompany this valuation are available under reference VAL/1A.

Griffith's Valuation (VAL/2B)

The Primary Valuation of Ireland, 1848-1864, gives a complete list of occupiers of land, tenements and houses. Better known as Griffith's Valuation, it is arranged by counties and within counties by Poor Law Union Divisions and within Unions by barony and then by parish and townland. For each townland the following information is recorded:

- Occupier of the land or houses
- Name of the person from whom the property was leased
- Description of the property
- Acreage of the farm
- Valuation of the land and buildings

The Griffith's Valuation is a useful, if flawed, substitute for the 1851/1861 census returns, in that it only gives the name of the leaseholder, and does not list the other family members. It is available in manuscript form but a printed edition is available on the shelves of the Public Search Room. While this is much easier to use, it is not as detailed as the original field books which will give more information on mills and factories and will occasionally include plans. For information on how to use the Griffith's Valuation, see the leaflet on ‘How to access Valuation Records’. The Householders’ Index (also available on the Public Search Room shelves) can be used as a guide to the surnames listed in the Griffith's Valuation. The maps accompanying Griffith's valuation are available under VAL/2A. The entire printed valuation has been digitised and indexed and can be accessed at www.irishorigins.com and at www.askaboutireland.ie

Annual Revision Lists (VAL/12/B)

The First General Valuation was completed by 1863-4. Thereafter, properties were valued annually from 1864 until the early 1930s, the details of which are recorded in the annual revision books, with each volume covering approximately a ten-year period. Each year, valuers recorded any change in the quality or dimensions of the properties, or in the names of occupiers or immediate lessors, and any differences in the acreage and value. The changes were recorded in different colours of ink, one colour for each year, and the alterations are usually dated. This can help to establish significant dates in family history, such as dates of death, sale or migration. Associated maps at a scale of 6 inches to a mile can be found under VAL/12D and town plans under VAL/12E.
Also of interest are a series of valuers' note-books (VAL/12A). These first appeared in 1894 and record the details behind the revising valuer's decision to revise, upwards or downwards, the valuation of those premises where an addition or other alteration had been made. There is an extensive catalogue of the series on the shelves of the Public Search Room.

REVALUATION OF BELFAST, 1900-6 (VAL/7B)

Belfast was the only council to exercise the revaluation option granted to local councils by the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898. The valuers' note-books, arranged by ward, not only give a detailed description of every property (for example, age and size) but also record appeals against valuation. A ‘Street Names’ card index in the Public Search Room lists the volume number, and the page number within the volume, in which the street is recorded. This revaluation, carried out at a time when Belfast was reckoned to be the fastest-growing industrial city in the British Isles, is a particularly valuable source for any family historian wishing to trace ancestors who migrated to the city at this time. Associated maps can be found in VAL/7A.

FIRST NORTHERN IRELAND GENERAL REVALUATION, 1935, AND ITS REVISIONS (VAL/3)

The First General Revaluation came into force on 1 April 1936 - the first undertaken after the establishment of the government of Northern Ireland. It is an important source for historians interested in the more recent past. As well as the lists of the Revaluation itself (VAL/3B), there are also the revision lists in VAL/3C detailing changes in the ownership of property etc. until 1957. The maps, on the scale of 6 inches to one mile that accompany this valuation are also available, under VAL 3A, together with town plans under VAL/3G.

NORTHERN IRELAND GENERAL REVALUATION, 1956/7 (VAL/4)

As a result of World War II, the Second Revaluation did not take effect until 1 April 1957. PRONI only holds the revisions of this valuation (VAL/4B) and the associated maps (VAL/4A).

THIRD GENERAL REVALUATION, 1975, AND REVISIONS UP TO 1993 (VAL/14)

This is the most recent valuation held in PRONI (VAL/14A); the subsequent revisions are to be found in VAL/14B and VAL/14C and the associated maps in VAL/14D.
USING THE VALUATION RECORDS

To use the valuation details for a townland you will need to know the following: county, poor law union, barony, parish and district electoral division.

These administrative subdivisions can be found by consulting the Topographical Index on the Public Search Room shelves; some will also appear on PRONI’s website. The place name index in the Public Search Room in PRONI will give you the exact reference number for valuation books in VAL/2B and VAL/12B.
The first properly organised census in Ireland commenced in 1821, and, thereafter, with some exceptions, a census was taken every ten years. Unfortunately, most of the 1831-1891 returns were either pulped into waste paper during the First World War or were destroyed later during the Irish Civil War. However, returns for a small number of parishes have survived:

This census was organised by townland, civil parish, barony and county and took place on 28th May 1821. Almost all the original returns were destroyed in 1922, with only a few surviving for Cos Fermanagh and Cavan (PRONI Reference MIC/5A).

1831

Once again this census was organised by townland, civil parish, barony and county. It only records the name of the owner/occupier of the property, the townland or street, the number of the house, the number of persons in the family (and whether male or female) the number of servants in the house (and whether male or female), the total number of people in the house and the numbers of each denominations (whether Established Church, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian or other). Very little of this census survives, with most of the remaining fragments relating to Co. Londonderry:

| MIC/5A/5 and 6 | Barony of Coleraine; |
| MIC/5A/6 and 7 | City of Londonderry; |
| MIC/5A/8A-B    | Barony of Loughlinsholin; |
| MIC/5A/9A      | Barony of Tirkeeran. |

The government census, taken on 6 June 1841, followed the same general pattern as that of 1831 except that the returns were compiled by the householders themselves rather than government enumerators and the name of every person in the household is recorded. Unfortunately, no part of the census for Northern Ireland has survived but some returns for Co. Cavan did survive (PRONI reference MIC/5A/9B). However, the 1841 census was the earliest to be of use when the Old Age Pensions were introduced in the early twentieth century. Proof of age was accepted if the claimant could be identified in the 1841 or 1851 census. The resultant searches in the 1841 and 1851 census are to be found in the Old Age Pension claim forms which have survived (PRONI Reference T/550). There are also some individual returns (see PRONI reference MIC/15A).

Taken on 30 March 1851, this government census added a column for religious affiliation. Most of the surviving returns relate to Cos Antrim and Fermanagh (see PRONI reference MIC/5A/10-26). There are also some surviving returns for Cromac Ward in Belfast that are held in the National Archives, Dublin but a microfilm copy is available in PRONI (PRONI reference MIC/689). The census returns for 1851 were also used for Old Age Pension claims (see comments above on 1841 census). There are also some individual census returns (see PRONI reference MIC/15A).

1861, 1871, 1881 and 1891

The census records for 1861 to 1891 were destroyed by government order. Nothing survives for the Northern Ireland area. See Family Tree Series No 6 - Census Substitutes.

Indexes

An index to the census returns for 1841 and 1851 that appear in the Old Age Pension claim forms (T/550) is available on microfiche (see PRONI reference MF/9/1-15). The final version of this index is still being worked on.
1708
In 1708 James Maguire made a survey of the town of Downpatrick, Co. Down. He described each premise by name, giving its size, its principal tenant and the half yearly rent due. A manuscript copy of this survey, made by the Rev. David Stewart in 1927, is available under the PRONI Reference MIC/637/8.

1740
In 1740 the Irish House of Commons ordered a religious census of Protestant householders to be carried out. Although the original returns were lost when the Public Record Office of Ireland in Dublin was destroyed in 1922, transcripts of some have survived for parts of Cos Antrim, Armagh, Down, Donegal, Londonderry and Tyrone. The returns are arranged by county, barony and parish and give names only. The typescript copies can be found under the PRONI Reference T/808/15258 and T/716/9 but copies of them are available on the Search Room shelves in PRONI. The following parishes are covered:

Co. Antrim:  Ahoghill, Armoy, Ballintoy, Ballymoney, Ballyrashane, Ballywillin, Billy, Clough (Dunaghy) , Culfeightrin, Derrykeighan, Drummaul, Duneane, Dunluce, Finvoy, Kilraghts, Ballymena (Kirkinriola); Loughguile, ‘Manybrooks’ (no parish of this name now); Ramoan, Rasharkin and Rathlin.

Co. Armagh:  Derrynoose, Mullaghbrack, Shankill and Tynan

Co. Donegal:  Clonmany, Culdaff, Desertegny, Donagh, Fahan, Moville and Templemore.

Co. Down:  Kilbroney and Seapatrick.

Co. Londonderry:  all parishes except for Agivey, Arboe and Derryloran (may be covered in the Co. Tyrone part of Co. Londonderry).

Co. Tyrone:  Derryloran and Kildress.
In March and April 1766, Church of Ireland rectors were instructed by the government to compile complete returns of all householders in their respective parishes, showing their religion, as between Church of Ireland (Episcopalian), Roman Catholic (termed ‘Papists’ in the returns) and Presbyterians (or Dissenters), and giving an account of any Roman Catholic clergy active in their area. Some of the more diligent rectors listed every townland and every household, but many drew up only numerical totals of the population. All of the original returns were lost when the Public Record Office of Ireland in Dublin was destroyed in 1922 but extensive transcripts survive and are available under the PRONI Reference T/808/15264, 15266 and 15267, T/283/C, T/664 and T/3901. Copies of the T/808 items are available on the shelves in the Search Room in PRONI. The following parishes are covered:

Co. Antrim: Ahoghill, Ballintoy, Ballymoney and Ballynure.

Co. Armagh: Creggan.

Co. Cavan: Kinawley (partly in Co Cavan); Lurgan and Munterconnaught.

Co. Down: Inch, Kilbroney and Seapatrick

Co. Donegal: Leck

Co. Fermanagh: Derryvullan, Devenish, Kinawley (partly in Co. Cavan) and Rossory.

Co. Tyrone: Aghaloo, Artrea, Carnteel, Clonfeacle, Derryloran, Donaghenry, Drumglass, Kildress, Tullyniskan, Magherafelt and Dungannon Town.

In 1770 a census was carried out for the town of Armagh giving individual names and occupations, size of family and religion and is arranged street by street. It can be found under the PRONI Reference T/808/14938 and T/808/14977.

Petitions of Dissenters and members of the Established Church (the Church of Ireland) to the Irish Parliament or the Lord Lieutenant can be found in T/808/15307. A copy is found on the Search room shelves. The names are arranged by parish or name of congregation. The following parishes/congregations are covered:
Co. Antrim: Antrim Borough; Old Antrim; Ballyclare town and neighbourhood; Ballymena town and neighbourhood; Ballynure town and neighbourhood; Ballynure Established Church; Belfast parish and town; Carnmoney parish; Carrickfergus town and county; Donegore, Kilbride and Nilteen; Dunmurry congregation in Drumbeg parish; Larne, Raloo, Carrickfergus, Kilwaughter, Glenarm and Ballyeaston; Lisburn town and neighbourhood.

Co. Armagh: Armagh parish; Clare congregation in Ballymore parish.

Co. Down: Ballee congregation; Bangor town and parish; Comber parish; Dundonald parish; Dromore parish; Dromara parish’ Drumballyroney and Drumgooland parishes; Killyleagh parish; Newry parish; Rathfriland congregation; Seapatrick, Tullylish and Donacloney parishes.

Co. Londonderry: Coleraine and Killowen parishes; Londonderry City.

Co. Tyrone: Benburb town and neighbourhood; Coagh; Cookstown congregation; Dungannon barony; Dungannon town and neighbourhood; Strabane town and neighbourhood.

1796
As part of a government initiative to encourage the linen trade, free spinning-wheels or looms were granted to individuals planting a certain area of land with flax. The lists of those entitled to the awards, covering almost 60,000 individuals, were published in 1796. They are to be found under the PRONI Reference T/3419 but a typescript copy is available on the Search Room shelves in PRONI. A microfilm index to the lists is also available under the PRONI Reference MF/7.

1803
The 1803 agricultural census returns for Co. Down, although a government led survey, are to be found in the Londonderry estate archive (PRONI Ref D/654/A2). Similar returns exist for Co. Antrim but they are in the National Archives in Dublin. British authorities, fearing a French Invasion of Ireland, made plans for the defence of the coastline so that in the event of an invasion they would know what to move and what support would be available for the army. The plans involved taking an inventory of livestock, provisions, crops and equipment. The returns of ‘live and dead stock’ record the names of householders by townland and parish with details of what stock each held but the names of householders are only recorded for 30 out of the 50 parishes. Nevertheless over 11,000 names are recorded.
1824-1838
The Composition Act of 1823 specified that tithes due to the Established Church, which had been payable in kind, should now be paid in money. As a result it was necessary to carry out a valuation of the entire country, parish by parish, in order to determine how much would be payable by each landowner. The Tithe Applotment Books list the occupiers of titheable land and are not a list of householders as is the case in a census. Therefore, labourers, etc. were all omitted, in addition to all purely urban dwellers. The books can be found under the PRONI Reference FIN/5A. The Householders’ Index, available on the shelves in the Search Room in PRONI, can be used as a guide to the surnames listed in the Tithe Applotment Books.

National school registers, which record the age of the pupil, religion, father’s address and occupation, are a valuable source of information for anyone interested in tracing their family tree. PRONI has in its custody registers, etc for almost 1,600 schools in Northern Ireland. An index to the schools with the appropriate SCH number is available in PRONI and can also be found in the Guide to Educational Records, available on the Search Room shelves in PRONI.

1848-1864
Popularly known as Griffith’s Valuation, the Primary Valuation of Ireland lists every householder and occupier of land in Ireland. It is arranged by county, barony, poor law union, civil parish and townland. A printed edition of the Griffith’s Valuation is available on the Search Room shelves in PRONI. See also Family Tree Series Leaflet 4 ‘Valuation Records’.

1876
The ‘Landowners in Ireland: Return of owners of land of one acre and upwards...’ records more than 32,000 owners of land in Ireland in 1876, identifying them by province and county. A copy of this publication is available on the shelves in the Search Room in PRONI.
What wills does PRONI hold?

PRONI holds all original wills and letters of administration for Northern Ireland from 1900 onwards. They normally transfer to PRONI from the High Court when they are seven years old.

Almost all original wills and letters of administrations from 1858 to 1900 were destroyed in the fire at the Public Record Office in Dublin, but copies have survived.

Fortunately, before the wills were sent to Dublin, the District Registries had copied most of the information into large volumes, known as ‘copy will books’.

PRONI holds the copy will books for the District Registries of Armagh, Belfast and Londonderry, while the National Archives of Ireland hold those that have survived for the other District Registries.

What about pre-1858 wills?

Before 1858 wills were proved and letters of administration were issued either in the Prerogative Court or in the consistorial or diocesan courts of the Church of Ireland (the State Church at the time). Official wills and administrations prior to 1858 were destroyed in 1922, however copies can often be found in family, estate and personal papers and in solicitors’ archives. The Name Search application on the PRONI website contains a searchable index of those surviving wills held by PRONI.

How do I search for a will at PRONI?

Using Will Calendars Online

There is a searchable index for wills on the PRONI website covering the years 1858-1968, with a gap from 1920-21. This is the easiest way to find a will for these dates. You can view the will calendar entry online. Digitised images of entries from the copy will books covering the period 1858-1900 are also available online.

Using Will Calendar Volumes in PRONI

There are bound annual indexes to all wills and admons, 1858–2009 (updated annually), in what are known as ‘Calendars of Wills and Administrations’ (simply referred to as ‘will calendars’) and a consolidated index, 1858–1877, on the shelves in the Public Search Room in PRONI. Arranged alphabetically by name of testator (the person who made the will) for each year (one or two volumes per year), these give a brief abstract of the will or admon. Up until 1921 the calendars cover the whole of Ireland and thereafter only the six counties of Northern Ireland.

How do I order the will to view it at PRONI?

You should follow these steps to order out a will at PRONI:

- Locate the will calendar entry, either in the will calendar volumes in the search room or on the PRONI website (as detailed above).
- Note the name, date of probate and the registry.
- Use the electronic ordering system in the reading room to order the will using this information.
- You can look at the document in the reading room.

Can I have a copy of a will?

Yes. PRONI provides a copying service. You can request a paper copy or use the self service camera in the reading room.

Is there a charge?

There is no charge for ordering out a will to view. However there is a charge for copying. See the fees and charges section of our website for details.

Can I have a certified copy?

Yes, PRONI can make a certified copy of a will for you. There is a certification charge of £3.80 per page for this service in addition to the regular copying charges.
What is ‘probate’?

Wills cannot take effect until after the death of a person and after they have been proved in a court. The grant of probate authenticates the will and confers on the executors the power to administer the estate of the deceased. The official date of a will is therefore the ‘date of probate’, that is, the date when it was officially proved in a court. Probate can take anything from a minimum of six weeks up to several years.

What if the will was probated in the last seven years?

If the will was probated within the last seven years it will not yet have been transferred to PRONI. In this case you should contact the Probate Office of the Northern Ireland Court Service to request a copy.

What information is contained in a will?

Wills contain the name, address and occupation of the testator (the person who made the will), as well as details of the beneficiaries (people to whom the testator left something) and of the property owned (land and goods). Many wills also include the addresses and occupations of witnesses and executors (those whose duty it is to see that the terms of the will are carried out) who may also be related to the testator.

What if the person I am interested in did not leave a will?

If a person dies without making a valid will, the court can grant letters of administration (known as admons) by appointing persons to administer the estate of the deceased. Admons will contain the name, residence and occupation of the deceased and of the person or persons appointed to administer the estate. Admons do not survive prior to 1900.

What is an admon with will annexed?

Sometimes a grant of probate cannot be given by the court because there is a legal issue with the will. For example, where one of the executors named in the will has died prior to probate being applied for. In this case the court can grant letters of administration to remedy the problem (such as appointing a new executor) and this admon with a copy of the will annexed is probated.
During the 18\textsuperscript{th} and 19th centuries the majority of the Irish population lived on large estates. The administration of these estates produced a large quantity of records, including maps, rentals, account books, etc. Landed estate records, particularly the rent rolls, rentals and maps listing the tenants on the estate, are a useful source of genealogical information. They may in fact be the only source available for the period before 1830. Although they rarely record information on under-tenants and cottiers, the records of the landed estates are of great importance as a result of the destruction of the 19\textsuperscript{th} century census returns.

The Public Record Office of Northern Ireland (PRONI) holds the largest collection of estate records in Northern Ireland. Some estates are better documented than others. In general, it can be said that the larger the estate the more likely it is that extensive and continuous records have survived.

Some of the landed estate archives to be found in PRONI relate to estates that are solely in what is now the Republic of Ireland. These include the extensive Kenmare estate in Co Kerry and many of the larger estates in Co Monaghan. Other estate records in PRONI for property in the Republic of Ireland are there because many Ulster landlords also had property outside of the present six counties of Northern Ireland.

If you do not know the name of the local landlord in a particular area you can normally find it by looking at the printed Griffith’s Valuation Books for 1860, which are available on the shelves in the Search Room. The landlord’s name normally appears in the column headed ‘lessor’. When the name of the landlord has been identified the references to any records held in the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland can be located by:

1. Consulting the Guide to Landed Estate Records, which is available on the Search Room shelves. Estate names are arranged alphabetically within county, with a description of the records together with the relevant reference numbers.
2. Checking the Prominent Persons Index in the Public Search Room under the landlord’s name; this can also be viewed on the PRONI website.

The rentals and rent rolls are often the earliest estate records to use, but they are not the only type of record in landed archives, which are useful for genealogical purposes. Leases, wages and account books and often maps, all contain names of tenants occupying land on an estate or of people working on or connected with the estate in some way.

In general the best order in which to consult the different types of estate records for genealogical searching is:

1. rentals/rent rolls: these normally list the tenants, townland by townland and will record the acreage of their holdings and sometimes details of arrears;

2. leases: give the tenant’s name and often those of some of his children, with their ages where a tenant got a lease for 3 lives;

3. lease books: these will summarise details of the leases, often recording if the persons mentioned in leases for 3 lives are still alive or if they have left the estate;

4. rent ledgers: show how much and when each tenant paid his rent;

5. maps: these are usually on a large scale and plot tenants’ holdings;

6. wages books: record the names of estate labourers, household servants and gardeners who may not appear as tenants;

7. account books: often record the names of persons supplying goods and services;

8. land agents’ note-books: sometimes a page is devoted to a tenant and his family;

9. Militia, yeomanry and muster records can often be found in landed estate archives. They consist of lists of men liable for service in local defence forces.
Street Directories contain lots of information particularly on the gentry, the professional classes, merchants, manufacturers etc., including details of the smallest of market towns and ports in Ireland. To facilitate wider access PRONI has completed a major project to digitise some of the most heavily used directories which were formerly on open access in our Search Room. A full list of Directories, from 1819 – 1900, which are now available on-line is available on the PRONI website – www.nidirect.gov.uk/proni.

What information is found in Street Directories?

- Description of the town and surrounding countryside
- Names and addresses of traders, nobility and gentry (often listed by trade and by street).
- Names and addresses of officials such as magistrates, Poor Law guardians, town commissioners, ministers of religion
- The location and names of churches, schools and other public buildings in the towns.

What information is not found in Street Directories?

Small tenant farmers, landless labourers and servants are not listed.

What Directories are held in PRONI?

The principal country-wide directories are:

Pigot’s Commercial Directory of Ireland, 1824 – towns of Ireland listed alphabetically, supplying the names of the nobility etc, and dividing the traders of each town according to their trade.

Slater’s Directory of Ireland, 1846, 1856 and 1870 – arranged by province. Trade lists for each town and village within the provinces are included as well as lists of nobility, gentry and clergy. Principal farmers are not included. The main cities - Belfast, Cork, Dublin and Limerick – have alphabetical indexes to their lists of traders, nobility, etc.

Thom’s Official Directory of Great Britain and Ireland, 1845-1958 – most comprehensive for Dublin and Co. Dublin. There is an alphabetical listing of the nobility, gentry, merchants and traders for Dublin as well as a listing by street. For the counties and municipal towns including Belfast there is a general description followed by a list of officials.

During the 19th century local directories were produced for important commercial centres such as Belfast, Derry, and Newry. The quality varies considerably from locality to locality. Some of the local directories held in PRONI are:

Thomas Bradshaw’s General Directory of Newry, Armagh, Dungannon, Portadown, Tandragee, Lurgan, Waringstown, Banbridge, Warrenpoint, Rosstrevor, Kilkeel and Rathfriland, 1820, includes an alphabetical list of traders but does not include local gentry.

Matier’s Belfast Directory, 1835-36, includes an alphabetical list of gentry, merchants and traders residing in Belfast and its neighbourhood as well as a listing by professions and trades.

Martin’s Belfast Directory, 1839 and 1841-42, includes an alphabetical list of gentry, merchants and traders living in Belfast and also a street-by-street listing of the principal streets.

Henderson’s Belfast Directory and Northern Repository, 1846-47 includes a street-by-street listing and an alphabetical list of the ‘principal inhabitants’.

Belfast and Province of Ulster/Northern Ireland Directory from 1852 to 1996 (with some gaps in the series), includes an alphabetical and a street listing of the inhabitants of Belfast as well as a listing by trade and profession. This is followed by a county directory listing the officials in each county and a provincial town directory for the principal towns and villages of Ulster providing details of officials, the nobility and gentry and traders and manufacturers. (1852–1900 available online only)

Slater’s Directory of Ulster, 1894, lists the nobility, gentry, clergy and traders for the provincial towns. For Belfast the arrangement is by street and by trade/profession as well as an alphabetical listing.

Check the PRONI Library catalogue for a full list of directories held.

_Belfast and Ulster Street Directories 1805–1914_ (Deirdre Armstrong ed.), Library and Information Services Council (NI), 2008, is a guide to Ulster Street Directories and where they can be accessed, also available in the PRONI Library.

VOTERS’, POLL AND FREEHOLDERS’ RECORDS

Voters’, Poll and Freeholders’ records are lists of people entitled to vote, or of people who actually voted at elections. They are normally arranged on a county basis.

Poll books record the actual votes cast at parliamentary elections. They contain the name and address of the voter and often the address of the ‘Freehold’ which entitled the voter to his vote. Voters Lists and Freeholders registers give similar information to the Poll books but do not record how people voted at a particular election.

From 1727 to 1793 only Protestants with a freehold worth at least 40 shillings per year had a vote. Between 1793 and 1829 both Protestants and Roman Catholics with 40 shilling freeholds had votes. In 1829 all 40 shilling Freeholders lost the vote.

The most generally useful Poll books and Freeholders’ registers are:

Co. Antrim

Most of the Freeholders’ records before 1840 have now been indexed and digitised and are available on the PRONI website.
Emigration records deposited in PRONI are the most obvious source for researchers who are descendants of emigrants from Ireland, particularly Ulster. Unfortunately, emigration is not particularly well documented. Most passenger lists, for example, are to be found at the country of entry rather than departure due to the fact that the authorities were more concerned with recording those entering a country rather than those leaving.

Many of the emigration archives that are deposited in PRONI have been indexed and either transcribed or digitised to form part of DIPPAM (Documenting Ireland: Parliament, People and Migration), an online virtual archive of documents and sources relating to the history of Ireland and its migration experience from the 18th to the late 20th centuries. The Irish Emigration Database provides access to copies of most of the emigration letters, passenger lists and journals held in PRONI. This resource is freely available online at www.dippam.ac.uk.

Emigrant letters form a substantial part of our emigration records. This material is found in many of the private collections in PRONI. Search the PRONI eCatalogue by keyword, phrase or PRONI reference number.

Emigration to USA

Passenger Lists held in PRONI are:

- T711/1 List of passengers from Warrenpoint and Newry to Philadelphia and New York, 1791-2
- MIC333/1 Passenger Lists – Philadelphia, 1800-82
- MIC333/2 Passenger Lists – Baltimore, 1820-91
- MIC333/3 Passenger Lists – Boston, 1871-91
- MIC333/4 Passenger Lists – New York, 1826-27, 1840-2 and 1850-2
- T1011/1 Passengers from various origins arriving mainly in New York, 1802-14
- T3262 Passenger Lists from Belfast, Cork, Limerick, Londonderry, Newry, Sligo, Warrenpoint to USA, 1803-06
- T2786/1 Volume containing census information for United Parish of Rathespick with Russagh, Co. Westmeath, together with genealogical and emigrant information, 1863-1916.
- T521/1 Passenger Lists from Ireland to America, 1804-06 (index available...
A number of published lists of emigrants are also available in PRONI. These include:

The Famine Immigrants: Lists of Irish Immigrants Arriving at the Port of New York 1846-1851 (seven volumes, published in 1983), contains data from the original ship manifest schedules, deposited in the National Immigration Archives in the Balch Institute in Philadelphia.

Irish Passenger Lists 1847-1871, contains lists of passengers sailing from Londonderry to America on ships of the J & J Cooke Line and the McCorkell Line.

Immigrants to New England 1700-1775, contains an alphabetical list compiled by Ethel Stanwood Bolton.

Passenger Arrivals at the Port of Philadelphia, 1800-1829.

Lists of Emigrants to America, 1635-1776, contains lists of passengers, including Irish emigrants, who departed from English ports.

Irish Passenger Lists, 1803-6: Lists of passengers sailing from Ireland to America extracted from the Hardwicke Papers.

Also available are some transcripts of passenger lists of vessels arriving at New York, 1820-1821, and at Boston, 1820-91.

Emigration to Canada

Settlers from Ulster set up home in every Canadian Province and played an influential role in the national life of their adopted home. Many Ulster people migrated to the United States via Canada. It was cheaper to travel to Quebec from the port of Londonderry than to go from Belfast or Liverpool to Boston or New York. The voyage was also usually shorter.

The first large-scale settlement of Upper Canada came when individuals - many of them Scots-Irish - fled from the United States during the American War of Independence (1760–1791). A second wave of immigration, coming directly from Ulster, consisted of disbanded soldiers and small farmers hit by the agricultural slump which followed the Napoleonic Wars (which ended in 1815).

Of particular interest to researchers interested in emigration to Canada are the passenger lists, the most important of which are listed below:

D2892/1/1-3 Three volumes of passenger lists, February 1847-1849, February 1850-August 1857, March 1858-July 1867, of J & J Cooke, shipping agents, Londonderry. The Canadian destinations are Quebec and St John's, New Brunswick, with details also being given for Philadelphia and New Orleans (see also MIC/13).

D3000/104/1-10 Typed transcripts, compiled in 1984, of notices which appeared in Canadian local newspapers, mostly the New Brunswick Courier, 1830-46, and the Toronto Irish Canadian, 1869. The notices include queries as to the whereabouts of various persons who had emigrated from Ulster to Canada and the United States.

D3000/104/11-13 Typed transcripts, compiled 1984-5, of notices inserted in Canadian local newspapers by passengers arriving from Ireland. The newspapers were the New Brunswick Courier and the Saint John Morning News, covering the period 1828-58. There are also summaries based upon these notices which list the passengers involved, their ports of embarkation in Ireland and the dates of arrival in Canada.

T768/1 List, 1833-34, of emigrants from Coleraine parish, Co. Londonderry, giving information on the names, ages, religion, townlands of residence and date of departure of those involved. The destinations are also given and include St John's, New Brunswick and Quebec.

T3168 Passenger list, 11 May 1847, issued by A.C. Buchanan, Chief Agent for Emigration at Quebec, giving the date of sailing, the names of the ships involved, their point of departure and the number of passengers carried.

Emigration to Australia and New Zealand

Australia emigration, as a mass organised movement did not get going in a major way until the 1820s, after the disruption of the Napoleonic Wars. The distance involved, and the logistics of the journey, meant that the numbers going to Australia as compared with North America were much smaller. For the same reasons emigration to Australia was much more controlled. Regulation was applied at points of departure in Britain and Ireland and at entry points in Australia.

There were also government-assisted schemes such as the emigration of workhouse inmates to Australia. Labour had become extremely scarce in Australia around the time of the Famine in Ireland and the colonists in New South Wales and Western Australia pressed the Colonial Office to secure more settlers. Arrangements were made with the Colonial Land and Emigration Commissioners for a scheme of assisted emigration and the first 5,000 adults were sent in 1847.

Convict settlements were a feature of Australian society for nearly a century until the transportation system was progressively withdrawn from 1840 onwards. In that year New South Wales was removed from the system. It was followed by Tasmania in 1852 and Western Australia in 1867. The main reason for this was that the Australian colonists came to regard the convict system as a stigma on those who had chosen to emigrate as well as the criticism in both Britain and Australia because of the inevitable brutality of certain aspects of the convict system.

The following records are of particular importance:

MIC/468/1 Indexes to male convicts transported to New South Wales, 1830-1842 and 1850-1868.

T3036/6 Passenger List, 1841, Victoria, Australia.

D648/9 Register of Girls’ Friendly Society - sponsored emigrants from various counties in Ireland, 1890-1921.

MF/4 Indexes to births, deaths and marriages in New South Wales, Australia, 1787-1899.
3 volumes of indexes to male convicts transported to New South Wales, Australia, 1830-42, and to Western Australia, 1850-68, taken from the records of the Principal Superintendent of Convicts.

Volume containing census information for United Parish of Rathespick with Russagh, Co. Westmeath, together with genealogical and emigrant information, 1863-1916.

The ‘undertakers’ granted land in the Plantation of Ulster were required to occasionally muster their Protestant tenants for inspection by the Government-appointed Muster Master General who recorded the names, the ages and the types of arms borne by the tenants. All Protestant males between the ages of 16 and 60 were liable to service in the militia. Only copies of the militia records survive: they list the undertakers, and sometimes divide the lists of tenants by parish or by barony.

Faced by the possible rebellion in the late eighteenth century, the Government raised a mainly Protestant force, the yeomanry, which it paid for and equipped. The yeomanry were expected to drill two days a week, and could be called out to suppress public disorders and to assist the regular army in the event of invasion or insurrection.

There are in addition Muster Rolls of Regular Army units raised in Ireland.

The most generally useful are listed below:

Poor Law records are the archives of the Boards of Guardians (PRONI ref BG/), the administrators of the Poor Law in Ireland, 1838-1948. PRONI holds extensive records for the 28 Poor Law Unions (each of which had a workhouse) that originally operated in the area now covered by Northern Ireland. In 1870, the Union of Gortin (BG/28) was amalgamated with that of Omagh (BG/26). Each Poor Law Union was named after a chief town in the district, and usually serviced the area in a ten-mile radius, often extending across county boundaries. As well as workhouses, the Boards maintained infirmaries and fever hospitals. The system was financed by a rate set by the Poor Law Valuation.

The original aim of the poor law system was to provide relief to the destitute poor only if they entered the workhouse. Due to the demand for workhouse accommodation created as a result of the ravages of the Great Famine, outdoor relief was eventually introduced. This was granted to the able-bodied poor in the form of money or goods. As a result of the introduction of outdoor relief, the workhouses in Ireland had by 1900 become a refuge for the old, the sick and destitute children. The workhouse system lasted until the introduction of the Welfare State in 1948.

THE RECORDS

There are comprehensive sets of records covering the poor law unions that were established in the counties of Northern Ireland. However, the extent to which the records survive for each of these unions varies from place to place. Classes of records include:

- Minute books
- Indoor relief registers, later referred to as admission and discharge books
- Births and deaths registers
- Outdoor relief registers
- Vaccination registers

MINUTE BOOKS

There are complete sets of minute books for almost all the unions, and even those unions with imperfect sets lack only an occasional volume. These volumes are of less interest to genealogists as they largely contain minutes of the meetings of the various committees and a great deal of purely statistical information. However, the early volumes in particular will often contain the names of those individuals – for example of those who failed to comply with workhouse rules, who absconded or were given assistance to emigrate by the Board of Guardians. Several volumes of minutes have been transcribed and are available on the Search Room shelves. Transcripts of minutes for some Poor Law Unions in the Republic of Ireland are also available in the Search Room.

Registers

The indoor relief registers and admission and discharge registers list the name, age, religious denomination, marital status, former occupation and, if disabled, the nature of the disability, of those entering and leaving the workhouse. Occasionally, registers of births and deaths that occurred in the workhouse survive for some Poor Law Unions. There are also outdoor relief registers which are less extensive for the 19th century than the indoor relief registers. Lists of inmates of the infirmaries and fever hospitals attached to the workhouse may also have survived and these, too, can be very useful.

Another form of out-door relief was the practice of putting out to nurse or boarding out orphan and deserted children. Under Acts of 1898 and 1900 a record of children and nurses had to be kept. You will find details either in the out-door relief registers or in separate boarding-out registers.

The Medical Charities (Ireland) Act 1851 brought the dispensary system under the control of the Boards of Guardians which in turn created new series of records. These included vaccination registers that give the name of the child, the names and addresses of the mother or father or other person in charge of the child, the date of vaccination and the age of the child at the time of vaccination. Some of these registers date back to the 1860s for some Poor Law Unions.

All of these records provide information that can be very useful to the genealogist, particularly as poorer people are less likely to be recorded elsewhere.

Closure Periods

Due to the sensitive nature of some of the material contained within them, some records will be closed for 100 years from the latest date in each volume. This means that a register that contains information recorded in June 1907, will not be open to the public until January 2008 (the first working day in the year following their hundredth anniversary). Registers over 100 years old (where available) are open to the public. For specific enquiries in records less than a hundred years you should put your request in writing to the Records Management, Cataloguing and Access Section in PRONI and a search will be carried out for you.

Summonister rolls, 1610-84

These were copies of fines imposed and recognizances forfeited at Assizes, Quarter Sessions and in the King’s courts. Among the reasons for the imposition of fines was non-appearance at court. Names and residences are recorded. The original rolls were lost in the destruction of the Public Record Office of Ireland in 1922 but copies of some, mainly for Counties Londonderry and Tyrone, have survived. (PRONI reference T/808/15090, 15120, 15126, 15130-15135, 15139 and T/1365/2)

Muster Rolls 1630

These contain lists of the principal landlords in Ulster, and the names of the men they could assemble in an emergency. They are arranged by county, and district within the county. (See ‘Your Family Tree’ Leaflet 12- Militia, Yeomanry Lists and Muster Rolls for details)

Books of Survey and Distribution

Compiled around 1680 as a result of the wars of the mid-seventeenth century when the English government needed reliable information on land ownership throughout Ireland to carry out its policy of land distribution. The Books of Survey and Distribution are laid out on a barony and parish basis and include a record of land ownership before the Cromwellian and Williamite confiscations as well as the names of the individuals to whom the land was distributed. PRONI reference MIC/532/1-13.

Civil Survey of Ireland

Sir William Petty’s Civil Survey of Ireland, compiled between 1655 and 1667, contains lists of the principal landlords of each townland as well as their predecessor before the Cromwellian confiscations of 1641. It contains a great deal of topographical information arranged by county, barony, parish and townland. Unfortunately, very little of this survey survives, although Co. Londonderry and Co. Tyrone are available. PRONI reference T/371.
Census of Ireland c.1659

This census of Ireland was compiled by Sir William Petty and published by S Pender, a copy of which is in PRONI. It contains only the names of those with title to land (titulados) and the total number of English and Irish resident in each townland. Five counties – Cavan, Galway, Mayo, Tyrone and Wicklow – are not covered. See the following:

Hearth Money Rolls

The first Hearth Money Act was passed in the Irish Parliament in 1662. It provided that 2 shillings should be paid on every hearth or ‘other place used for firing’. The Hearth Money Rolls, arranged by county and parish, list the name of the householder and the number of hearths on which he was taxed and the amount to be paid. The tax was collected over areas known as ‘Walks’ and based on the town. The ‘Lisburn Walk’, for example, covered a large area of the south of Co. Antrim and NOT merely Lisburn town. PRONI has in its custody records compiled by scholars that are of enormous interest to genealogists. Pedigrees for families from many different parts of Ireland are available. Most notable of these are extract pedigrees from wills proved in the Prerogative Court of Ireland, 1536-1800, compiled by Sir William Betham, Ulster King of Arms, and copied for his own use by Betham’s successor, Sir Bernard Burke. Burke’s set of 42 large volumes of Pedigree Charts (PRONI reference T/559/1-42) are of great importance to all record searchers. Indexes to these volumes are available in the Public Search Room in PRONI (PRONI reference number T/559/43). Each volume itself has an index at the back and these are worth checking to ensure that you have seen all the entries for the family name included in that particular volume. (See Guide to Probate Records for more details)

The Groves Manuscripts
These contain a great deal of valuable material for genealogists. Tenison Groves, a Belfast genealogist, spent more than forty years compiling a vast collection of transcripts, abstracts, notes, etc., from records held in the Public Record Office in Dublin prior to its partial destruction in 1922. The part of the collection that relates to Northern Ireland was purchased by PRONI in 1939. The 9,000 plus items includes seventeenth-century muster rolls, militia lists and family pedigrees. The genealogical material has been arranged rather haphazardly, although surnames starting with the same letter are usually grouped together. The arrangement under each letter is not strictly alphabetical and material on one name can appear in several volumes. The Groves Manuscripts can be found under the PRONI reference number T/808; typescript copies of some of these documents are available on the shelves of the Public Search Room.

Canon Leslie Manuscripts
Canon Leslie was another antiquarian/genealogist who spent a lot of time in the Public Record Office in Dublin before 1922 transcribing wills and compiling genealogical notes and pedigrees from the records. Most of his notes can be found under the PRONI Reference T/1075.
Pedigrees and genealogical papers relating to individual families can be located using the Personal Names Index. A number of such papers have also been collected together under the single PRONI reference number D/3000. Researchers interested in the pedigrees of the leading landowning families in Ulster should consult the introductions in the respective catalogues.
The Encumbered Estates Acts, 1848 and 1849, allowed the sale of Irish estates which had been mortgaged and whose owners, because of the Great Famine, were unable to meet their obligations. It was hoped that English investors would be attracted to buy Irish estates and thereby transform Irish agriculture. Under the 1849 Act an Encumbered Estates Court was established with authority to sell estates on the application of the owner or encumbrancer (one who had a claim on the estate). After the sale, the court distributed the money among the creditors and granted clear title to the new owners. The existing tenants on the estates were unprotected by legislation. Estates were generally bought by speculators. Between 1849 and 1857, there were 3,000 estates totalling 5,000,000 acres, disposed of under the acts. The functions of the court were assumed by the Landed Estates Court in 1853.

The most spectacular sale at the encumbered estates court was the property of the 3rd Marquis of Donegall, which had been in financial difficulties since the late eighteenth century. When he succeeded to the title in 1844 the new Marquis inherited debts of nearly £400,000 - fourteen times the annual rental. He had no choice but to let the Encumbered Estates Court arrange the sale of the remaining thirty thousand acres.

The Irish Encumbered Estates Court rentals are in bound volumes (PRONI reference D/1201) and are available for the whole of Ireland. They are divided by county and include as well as rentals - maps of the estate giving tenants’ names and, on occasion, surveys of the estate. They are an under-used source for genealogists interested in the names of tenants of various estates throughout Ireland in the mid-nineteenth century but they are equally of interest for the 18th century as there are numerous references to leases that were taken out in the 1700s. An index to the Encumbered Estates Court rentals is also available – PRONI reference MIC/80/2.
The Registry of Deeds, Dublin, is one of the most valuable sources of ancestral information for the eighteenth century particularly as many original wills were destroyed in the Public Record Office of Ireland in 1922. The information contained in this archive relates not only to the wealthier landlords but also can include details of the most humble of tenants. More than half a million registered deeds were deposited up to 1832. However, this is probably only a small percentage of the land transactions which took place as during the early years registration was voluntary.

The Irish Registry of Deeds was founded in 1708. One of its main functions was to ensure the enforcement of legislation which prevented Catholics from buying or taking long leases on land. Up until the 1780s, Catholics could not invest in mortgages to take leases on land for a longer period than 31 years.

A very wide range of documents was registered since Irish registration was not confined to the major categories of deeds - leases, mortgages, conveyances and annuities, rents, rights of way, wills, dissolution of partnerships etc. The Irish memorials are much more detailed than those in England and usually comprise a complete copy or a fairly full abstract of a document. As a source the registry is invaluable, particularly for the eighteenth century, and has great interest for genealogists and for Irish economic and social historians.

When a document was brought to the Registry of Deeds, a written report of it was made. This was usually a complete copy or a very full abstract. These written records were kept in the Registry of Deeds as memorials. Copies of the memorials were then made and bound in date order in volumes known as Transcript Books. These are available on microfilm (1,914 reels) from 1708-1929, with only a few gaps, under the PRONI reference MIC/311.

There are 2 main series of indexes to the Transcript and Abstract Books:

(a) The Names Index of grantors
(b) The Lands Index
The Names Index

The names index can be found under the PRONI reference MIC/7 which is an index to the years 1708-1929, and a consolidated index for the years 1905-24. This is accessible in the Self-Service Microfilm Room.

The names index, beginning in 1708, is arranged alphabetically by grantor, in periods of years. Up to 1832 it records the surnames of the grantors, the surname of the grantees (but there is no index of grantees), and the reference to the Transcripts Books (the volume number, page number and the number of the memorial). There is no description of the lands nor is the exact date of the deed given. After 1832, the townland or street, the county, city or town, and the barony or parish in which the lands are situated are recorded, as is the year of registration. From 1833 therefore, the details to be extracted to find the relevant information in the Transcript books are: the year of registration; the number of the file and volumes of the Transcript book; the number of the memorial; and the page of the Transcript book.

The Lands Index

The lands index can be found under MIC/7, covering the years 1708-1929 and is available in the Self-Service Microfilm Room. It is arranged under townlands by barony and county. Not all the deeds relating to a particular townland will be found together eg. deeds for Galtrim will be found in various place amongst the list of townlands beginning with 'G'. Town property is indexed under the towns in the County volumes. The exceptions are the cities and Corporation towns which are found in separate volumes in the county series. A list of the Corporation towns included in this series is found at the end of MIC/7 list. Houses in a city or town are searched for under their street name and again, deeds for a given street will not be found together eg. deeds for Agnes Street, will be found in various places amongst streets beginning with 'A'.
The Public Record Office of Northern Ireland has one of the largest collections of business records in the British Isles. Among the records can be found names of firms that have made Ulster famous throughout the world for linen, shipbuilding and engineering. The records themselves represent a wide cross-section of the business life of the province ranging from the records of Harland & Wolff to the local corner shop. They can be studied alongside related classes of archives deposited by employers, trade unions, public utilities, solicitors, banks and government departments.

The most extensive holdings of business records relate to the linen industry; more than 250 companies are represented. These date from the eighteenth century, when spinning and weaving were domestic in character and new methods of bleaching were being devised by the Ulster bleachers. They cover the whole range of business activity, from technical production and employment aspects to marketing on a worldwide scale.

Other firms represented include: the shipping records of the Head Line Shipping Co., Belfast, 1897-1970 (PRONI Ref – D/3117), the records of the bakery firm of Bernard (‘Barney’) Hughes Ltd, 1886-1972 (PRONI Ref – D/3338) and Andrews Mill, Comber.

Some of the earliest business records are found among family papers. These include papers relating to the shipment of linens to Jamaica, 1795-1840, and the Indian business and administrative papers, 1759-75, of James Alexander, later 1st Earl of Caledon, who made one of the great ‘nabob’ fortunes of the 18th century by the time he finally left Bengal in 1772 (PRONI Ref – D/2432).

Business records often contain a great deal of detailed information relating to suppliers, customers, shareholders and, of course, company employees. If you know that your ancestor was employed by a particular company search the Electronic Catalogue (on-line and in the Search Room) under the relevant heading ie linen industry, shipbuilding, etc, to see if their records have been deposited at PRONI.
If you know where your family came from, check out the Ordnance Survey maps to identify what businesses were in the area where the family may have worked. If they lived in Belfast the street directories will also show the location of businesses and industry in the vicinity of your ancestor’s home.

Generally the most useful information relating to employees is to be found in the wages books. These contain such information as employees’ names, days and hours worked, wage rates, overtime payments, details of work done, etc, and occasionally include their age and address. Information relating to the owners, directors or trustees of a company will generally be found in the minute books or annual reports of the company and the names of shareholders in shareholders’ registers.

It is important to note that the archives of chartered accountants and solicitors as well as private families often contain substantial business papers. Among the records of L’Estrange & Brett, solicitors, Belfast, for example, are the business records of the Larne and Ballymena Railway Co. and the Belfast Steamship Co., (PRONI Ref – D/1905 – see Your Family Tree: 19, Solicitors Records).

PRONI’s collection of trade union archives include those of the National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers, dating from 1883, and in part relating to branches in the Republic of Ireland (PRONI Ref – D/1050). More unusual are the minutes from 1896 of an employers’ association, that of the printers in Belfast (PRONI Ref – D/3759).
The Grand Jury was the most important local body in rural Ireland during the late eighteenth and early nineteenth century, and was empowered to raise money by means of county rates. Its responsibilities included the construction and repair of roads and bridges and the upkeep of local institutions such as lunatic asylums and hospitals. Members of the Grand Jury were selected by the High Sheriff from the leading property owners in the county; the order in which these jurors stood on the list gives a pretty good indication of their social standing.

Grand Jury Presentments are the chief records of the county administration prior to 1898. These and Grand Warrants contain information about work ordered to be done by the Grand Jury on roads, bridges and jails and about constabulary duties in the counties. They are arranged barony by barony within the county and useful genealogical information can be obtained by detailed searching of them. They are not indexed. Although frequently printed, different sets contain manuscript amendments and notes according to who owned and used them. An entry might state ‘that it was agreed that £12. 6s. 8d. shall be paid to Joshua Trainor of Ballylack, for repairing the road between Omagh and Strabane, from Peter McMenamin’s farm in Breeny to William Crawford’s farm at Ballykilbeg’.

Griffith’s Valuation, 1848-64, is the first Valuation to list the all occupiers of land, tenements and houses in Ireland. It is therefore one of the principal sources for family history. It is available in both manuscript and printed form in PRONI. The printed volumes are on open access in the Public Search Room.

Alternatively, you can now search the Griffith's Valuation online at www.irishorigins.net and at www.askaboutireland.ie free of charge. This is the simplest and most straightforward way to find the information you seek.

However, if you are unsure of where your family came from, you should check the Householders’ Index which is on open access in the Public Search Room in PRONI and follow steps 1-6 below. You may already know the townland or town where your family came from so you need first to identify the Poor Law Union, barony and parish in which the townland/town is located and then follow steps 4-6 below.

1. Use the Householders’ Index to find in which County the name is most prevalent.

2. Having done this the Householders’ Index will indicate in which Barony/Parish the name is most often found.

3. In the Parish section of the Householders’ there will be information to tell you which Union (ie the Poor Law Union) the Parish is in, eg Lisburn Union, Co. Antrim.

4. The printed Griffith’s Valuation books are arranged by Poor Law Union so next go the relevant Poor Law Union book which will give the page numbers for the required Barony/Parish and the townlands therein.

5. Search the pages of the Barony/Parish for the required name. When found, the details beside the name will show the type of property, acreage and valuation.
6. The numbers in the first column in the printed Griffith’s Valuation books give the plot numbers of each holding which are demarcated on the valuation maps. The small letters in the same column refer to houses which will also be marked on the valuation maps. Directly underneath the name of each townland in the Griffith’s Valuation books you will find the Ordnance Survey (OS) sheet number (also used for the valuation maps) for the map of that townland.

7. The valuation maps are listed as follows:-

<thead>
<tr>
<th>VAL/2A/1/ sheet number</th>
<th>Co. Antrim</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>VAL/2A/2/ sheet number</td>
<td>Co. Armagh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VAL/2A/3/ sheet number</td>
<td>Co. Down</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VAL/2A/4/ sheet number</td>
<td>Co. Fermanagh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VAL/2A/5/ sheet number</td>
<td>Co. Londonderry</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VAL/2A/6/ sheet number</td>
<td>Co. Tyrone</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Maps should be ordered by county and sheet number as indicated with each townland name in the valuation books.
Gravestone inscriptions are a wonderful source of information for both the local historian and for the genealogist. As many church registers do not begin until the early to mid 19th century and civil registration of births and deaths was not introduced until 1864, gravestone inscriptions are an alternative way of tracing a family back beyond the middle of the nineteenth century. The difficulty of tracing families through church registers is compounded by the fact that, of the 1,600 Church of Ireland registers in existence, 1,000 were in the safe-keeping of the Public Record Office of Dublin and were therefore destroyed in the Four Courts fire of 1922.

The importance of gravestone inscriptions has long been recognised, and attempts have been made to record for posterity some of the older and endangered epitaphs. PRONI holds a series of journals entitled Memorials of the Dead. These were published annually under the aegis of the Association for the Preservation of the Memorials of the Dead, Ireland, and span the years 1888 to 1934. The contents were made up of submissions by voluntary contributors, who transcribed whatever took their interest. The Memorials therefore, have a piecemeal, hit-and-miss quality rather than being a meticulous study of each cemetery. Errors in transcription and translation also occur. They do, however, cover the whole of Ireland, and illustrations (some of which are very roughly drawn) are included. Entries are arranged alphabetically by county and subdivided by parish, also in alphabetical order. Additionally, these journals contain letters and articles relating to memorials and the state of graveyards, as well as lists of subscribers to the Association.

For some years past, R.S.J. Clarke has compiled and edited a series of books entitled Gravestone Inscriptions, under the aegis of the Ulster Historical Foundation, formerly the Ulster-Scots Historical Society. While the burial grounds sited in County Down have been substantially covered, only some of the Belfast and County Antrim graveyards have been published. More books are planned, but some of the earlier works are now out of print. They also have a large amount of material still in index card form.
However, PRONI holds the full run of the twenty-seven printed volumes; twenty relating to Down, three to Antrim and four for the Belfast region. Twenty-one volumes are bound in a hardback, green, cover: County Down volumes 1-18, County Antrim, volumes 1 & 2, and Belfast volume 1. In soft binding are:

- Belfast (volume 2), covering Friar’s Bush and Milltown graveyards;
- Belfast (volume 3), covering the Balmoral, Friends and Malone burial grounds;
- ‘Old Belfast Families and the new burying ground, from gravestone inscriptions, with wills and biographical notes’, volume 4 in the Belfast series (the new burying ground referred to is the Clifton Street graveyard, no longer ‘open’);
- Two editions of volume 19 in the Down series, one of which contains a list of all the cemeteries covered in the series;
- ‘Heart of Downe: old Banbridge Families’, volume 20 in the County Down series;
- Old Families of Newry and District, volume 21 in the County Down series;
- ‘Old Families of Downpatrick and District’, volume 7 in the County Down series (New edition). This contains a ‘summary guide to documentary sources for the family and local historian, parish of Down’;
- Old Belfast families of Carrickfergus and Ballynure’, volume 3 in the County Antrim series. This includes three appendixes: (i) some Carrickfergus deaths, 1853-72; (ii) summary guide to documentary sources for Carrickfergus; and (iii) a list of subscribers.
- Old Families of Larne and District, volume 4 in the County Antrim series.

The introduction in the first book of the series gives an excellent exposition of the aims and objectives of the undertaking. In summary, however, County Down was chosen as the initial area of research simply for its geographical proximity to the compiler. Date was defined according to a compromise between best practice and economic considerations. Therefore, all gravestones having a date of death prior to 1865 (by which date civil registration is up and running) have been copied completely; where practicable, stones containing dates prior to 1900 have been included and, in very small cemeteries, all headstone inscriptions have been transcribed. By imposing strict geographical and period limitations, it was hoped that a more complete and accurate guide would ensue.
Entries are arranged alphabetically by name of graveyard, within which are listed, also in alphabetical order, the names on the stones. As much detail as was possible has been included but, naturally, due to exposure to the elements over long periods, much of the detail on the headstones has been lost. Usually, however, a brief description of the physical appearance of the grave is given. Inscriptions which also appear in Memorials are cross-referenced, and any inaccuracies noted. Of use to the local historian, as well as the genealogists, is the inclusion of the Ordnance Survey grid reference of the burial ground, a potted history of the church or area in which the graveyard is sited, some detail on the oldest graves and their general condition, and some photographs and illustrations. The series is indexed every five volumes (ie., volumes 5, 10, 15 and 20 give details of 1-5, 6-10, 11-15 and 15-20, respectively) with alphabetical lists of surnames and of graveyards.

All of the information on gravestone inscriptions in these printed volumes has now been digitised and indexed and can be accessed on-line at www.historyfromheadstones.com. Here you will also find maps showing the location of graveyards.

Other sources available in PRONI, which have been loosely bound in soft covers, many of them photocopies are:

David R Elliott, ‘Boho Church of Ireland Cemetery, County Fermanagh’ – transcriptions with an introduction.

David R Elliott, ‘Benmore Church of Ireland Cemetery, Inishmacsaint Parish, County Fermanagh’ – transcriptions with an introduction.

David R Elliott, ‘Slavin Church of Ireland Cemetery, Inishmacsaint Parish, County Fermanagh’ – transcriptions with an introduction.

David R Elliott, ‘Sydare Methodist Cemetery, Magheracross Parish, County Fermanagh’ – transcriptions with an introduction.

‘Gravestone inscriptions in Aghalurcher churchyard, Aghavea cemetery and Drumully cemetery’, taken from the Clogher Record, vols I-VI.
‘Gravestone inscriptions in Creggan graveyard, Donaghcavey cemetery, old Kilskeery graveyard, Drumglass cemetery’.

‘Gravestone inscriptions in Lambeg churchyard’.

‘Catholic gravestone inscriptions in the vicinity of Draperstown, County Derry’, comprising Moneynyeney, Kilcronaghan and Straw.

‘Tombstone inscriptions’, copied from the Journal of the County Louth Archaeological and Historical society, vol XIX, 1, 1977, contains information on St Mary’s ‘Abbey’; Dunany; Salterstown; County Louth; Rathdrumin; Bawntaaffe; Urnai; Fochart; St Nicholas, Dundalk.

D. Johnston, ‘Clogher Cathedral graveyard’ (1972) includes a short introduction entitled; ‘The graveyard in History’.

‘Carved in stone: a record of memorials in the ancient graveyard around the church of the Holy Evangelists’ (Church of Ireland), Carnmoney, Newtownabbey.

‘The Hidden Graveyard: Memorials in Graveyeard No 1, Church of the Holy Evangelists, Parish of Carnmoney, Church Road, Newtownabbey.

Your Family Tree: 22

UNDERSTANDING THE STONES

For anyone starting out to trace their family tree, the family burial ground is one of the most useful places to start. Even the briefest epitaph can reveal such details as name, age, date of death, religious denomination and social class, while the more elaborate inscriptions can plot an entire family history.

Names are sometimes given in full and occasionally a familiar name is included – for example, ‘James Patrick (Jimmy) Boyle’, or, less helpful, the family name only, for example, ‘The family burying ground of the Caldwell Family, Lisburn’. The most useful, for genealogical purposes, are those gravestones which contain references to other family members and which give connecting names, for example:

_Erected in loving memory of James Morton, Corbet, who died 14th June 1897 aged 66 years. ... And of his two daughters Margaret S. Steen who died 4th May 1899 aged 30 years, and Jane E. Mercer who died 24th Aug, 1904 aged 28 years._

Age is usually given either directly, ‘died aged 78’, ‘passed away in his 89th year’ or by deduction, ‘1805-1895’. Either way, once the birth year is known it is usually possible to obtain a birth certificate or (if pre-1864) a baptismal reference. The deceased’s religion can sometimes, but not always, be deduced from the site of the graveyard or cemetery. Older cemeteries were, in many cases, communal property, or attached to an Anglican (ie., Church of Ireland) church and used by all denominations. During the nineteenth century (after the Catholic Emancipation Act) there was an increase in the number of churches built by all denominations, and interment according to religious persuasion became more common.

Other information which may be included on gravestones is the occupation of the deceased: ‘Captain in the 18th, or Royal Irish, Regiment’, ‘Eminent Medical Student’, ‘Merchant of this town’. The home town may be given, for example, ‘Erected by James McMaster of Bangor in memory of his father John McMaster of..."
Ballymacheddy’. The cause of death is occasionally recorded: ‘John, who died suddenly when bathing on the 29th of June in the 13th year of his age’.

Notable achievements or membership of an illustrious society can be included:

‘Minister for 52 years’, ‘secretary of the congregational committee’, ‘a founder member of the Society for the Promotion of the True Faith’.

Paupers were, as a rule, buried in unmarked graves, frequently in a communal plot set aside for the purpose. As this was considered a shameful thing, even the poorest of people outside the workhouse would try to have something ‘put by’ for their funeral. Their headstones were usually quite simple. However, it did happen that as the family fortunes improved, a grieving son or daughter would erect a more fitting tribute to his or her parents. Generally, though, the higher up the social scale, the more grand and elaborate the gravestone, standing as a mark of the status of the entire family, past and present. An exception to this rule of thumb are those religious sects, such as the Moravians, who believe all are equal after death and all headstones are, therefore, of an equal height.

The more information that can be gleaned from headstones the easier it will be to find other sources which will be of help in tracing the family back through the centuries.

A useful website to consult is: www.historyfromheadstones.com where you will find details of over 50,000 gravestone inscriptions in Northern Ireland, while the Belfast City Council website www.belfastcity.gov.uk/burialrecords/search will give you details on Belfast City, Dundonald and Roselawn cemeteries.
Taxes have always been unpopular and arguably none more so than the tithe. The tithe was that part (the tenth) of the produce of the land given to the Established Church (the Church of Ireland) for the maintenance of the clergy. It was therefore regarded as something imposed by the Church of Ireland on the rest of the population. In fact, not all the money went to the Church of Ireland clergy. Following the dissolution of the monasteries, tithes previously paid to the monasteries became the property of the Crown who, in turn, either sold or granted the rights to laymen (‘impropriators’) or to bishops. Lord Bangor, for example, enjoyed the tithes of Bangor parish, while those for Comber were the property of Lord Londonderry. Tithes became identified with property rights and with the political ideology of the ruling classes. They were a source of disaffection, being, according to the Rev Dr Henry Montgomery, ‘productive of outrages and disturbances’.

Tithe Applotment Act, 1823

The Tithe Applotment Act of 1823 was an attempt to make the tithe payment more popular by allowing payments to be made in money instead of in goods. This was based on what the land could produce, calculated by the average yearly price of corn taken over the seven years prior to 1 November 1821. Unfortunately, the seven years chosen were years of comparatively high prices and the valuations were, as a result, higher than they could have been. In addition, the Act extended the tax to pasture land. As a result, agitation against the payment of tithes continued unabated.

Tithe Rent Charge Act, 1838

Despite some changes to the Act in an effort to make it more acceptable, the tithes remained unpopular, and practically un-collectable. Eventually, the government gave way to popular pressure and introduced the Tithe Rent Charge Act in 1838. This effectively combined tithe payments with the ordinary rents due to landlords. The tithe rent charge stopped being paid to the church on Disestablishment (that is, when Church and State officially split, on 1 January 1871), but it continued to be paid to a body called the Commissioners of Church Temporalities and, when that body was disbanded in 1881, to the Irish Land Commission. After the creation of Northern Ireland payments were made to the Ministry of Finance.
WHAT PRONI HOLDS

The tithe applotment books (PRONI reference FIN/5A) and the tithe rent records (PRONI reference FIN/5B) for Northern Ireland were transferred by the Ministry of Finance to the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland in 1924. As well as holding the original tithe books for the six counties of Northern Ireland, PRONI also has, on microfilm, the books for the remaining three counties of Ulster.

USING THE RECORDS

The Tithe Composition Applotment books, to give them their full title, cover the years 1823 to 1837. Each volume deals with a single parish that is then sub-divided by townland. Recorded against each townland are the names of the occupiers, the acreage and quality of their holdings, the valuation of the land and the amount of tithe to be paid. An index (approximately one million entries) giving the names of all those mentioned in the tithe applotment books is available on microfilm (see MIC/15K).

A UNIQUE SOURCE

For parish, townland and farm (distinguishing between arable, pasture or non-productive land), the tithe books give a picture of the quality of the land and the use made of it, prior to the ravages of the Great Irish Famine (1845 to 1851) and the subsequent mass emigration. The tithe books are also a unique genealogical source that links personal names with specific areas (though cities and larger towns were excluded). The obvious alternative sources, such as the population censuses of 1821 and 1831, were almost completely destroyed in 1922 in the fire at the Public Record Office in the Four Courts in Dublin. Another source, the books of the First General Valuation of Ireland (covering the 1830s and 1840s), concentrated on the value of portions of each townland rather than individual holdings so they contain relatively few names.

PROBLEMS

There are, however, some problems associated with using the tithe applotment books. Firstly, not all land will be included. In some instances this was because the land was of such poor quality that no tithe could be levied, or because the land was owned outright by the Church and therefore not subject to tithe or the land was outside the jurisdiction of the Church. In the latter case this usually applied to lands that formerly belonged to a monastery (these were often known as Granges), in which case the tithes were often payable to lay persons. Secondly, placenames had not yet been standardised so valuers often recorded the local or common name for a townland or parish rather than the one used by the Ordnance Survey. Legislation introduced in the 1830s attempted to standardise boundaries and resulted in many townlands and parishes being divided, amalgamated, renamed or otherwise altered. Some parishes appear not to be represented in the applotment books but are actually there under another name or, alternatively, were then part of a larger parish but are now parishes in their own right. For example, there is no named book for Kilcluney Parish because at the time of the survey it was part of Mullaghbrack Parish. (See the Introduction to FIN/5A for details of where to find the entries for parishes that do not appear on the FIN/5A catalogue)

PRONI’s Guide to the Tithe Records in the Search Room lists every townland in Northern Ireland with the relevant FIN/5A reference number for the tithe applotment book where the details for that townland can be found.
To the majority of people, Ireland is just a small island on the outlying fringes of Europe. Most visitors come to Ireland not for its scenery (which can be breathtaking), nor for its culture, despite its richness and variety: they come, rather, to trace their ancestors, for there are few American, Canadian and Australian families who cannot boast of an Irish ancestor somewhere in their line. Ireland, however, can be just a little confusing for those unaware of the finer points of the island’s modus vivendi. This leaflet is intended to guide the unwary past the most obvious pitfalls.

Historically, Ireland has been divided into four provinces: Ulster, Munster, Leinster and Connacht. These in turn, are sub-divided into a total of thirty-two counties: nine counties in Ulster, twelve in Leinster, six in Munster, and five in Connacht. Within counties (and occasionally overlapping) are parishes which are further sub-divided into townlands.

In 1801 Ireland officially joined with England, Scotland and Wales to become part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

In 1921, after years of unrest, the island of Ireland was divided in two. All of Munster, Leinster and Connacht, and three of the nine counties of Ulster, became the Irish Free State, later the Republic of Ireland. This part of the island is also known as ‘Eire’, ‘The Republic’, the ‘Twenty-six Counties’, and ‘The South’.

The remaining six counties of Ulster continued to be part of the United Kingdom and became known, officially, as Northern Ireland. However, the area is often referred to as ‘Ulster’, sometimes as the ‘Six Counties’, and sometimes as ‘The North’. To confuse things further, geographically, the most northerly county in Ireland (Donegal) is part of ‘The South’ although it is one of the counties of Ulster.

There are some other peculiarities, which tend to confuse visitors but, briefly, Londonderry and Derry are one and the same place, although the former is the official name of the city. Belfast is the capital city of Northern Ireland; Dublin the capital city of the Republic. Although those who are native to Northern Ireland may be regarded as both Irish and British, in the same way as a Yorkshireman is both English and British, there are sections of the population who prefer to think of themselves as Irish, while others would see themselves as Northern Irish and British.
To others, however, the population of Northern Ireland is simply British. Loyalists/Unionists are in favour of maintaining the Union with Great Britain and are predominately of the Protestant persuasion; Nationalists/Republicans, by tradition mainly Roman Catholic, aspire to a united Ireland under an Irish government.

The inhabitants of Ireland, both North and South, are mainly Christian, with the majority of the population of the Republic of Ireland professing to be Roman Catholic.

A word of warning: it is bad form to ask a person’s religious persuasion.

Another problem which can be encountered in Ireland (North or South) is that of language. Although everyone on the island speaks English, there are those who also speak Irish. Certain place names have changed over the years from Irish to English and vice versa. For example, County Leix (also spelt Laoise and pronounced ‘Leash’) was, prior to 1921, known as Queen’s County, while King’s County became Offaly. Many personal names have become anglicised over the years and suffixes to surnames, such as Mc and O, have been dropped. Conversely, an upsurge in nationalist feelings can mean the reversion of an anglicised name to its Irish roots - not always correctly translated.

The most common surnames in Ireland, according to a survey undertaken by the Registrar General in 1890, were: Murphy, Kelly, Sullivan, Walsh, Smith, O’Brien, Byrne, Ryan, Connor and O’Neill. Included in his reckoning were all the variants of the surname, for example, Smith, Smyth, Smithe and Smythe. In what is now Northern Ireland the most common names in 1890 were: Smith, Johnston, Stewart, Wilson, Campbell and Doherty. Certain names, however, are very common to a particular locality; for example, the most common surname in Co. Tyrone is Quinn while Maguire is the most common surname in Co. Fermanagh.

While the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland welcomes visitors who are trying to trace their ancestral roots, it should be borne in mind that the majority of the records held in PRONI relate, in the main, to Northern Ireland, although there are some which also relate to the rest of Ireland and, indeed, to even further afield. Our collections of emigrant letters, for example, come from all over the world. A guide to our holdings can be found on our web-site (www.nidirect.gov.uk/proni) and in our offices at 2 Titanic Boulevard, Titanic Quarter, Belfast BT3 9HQ.

The National Archives of Ireland and the National Library of Ireland, both located in Dublin, are the national repositories for those records relating primarily to the South of Ireland. From the 1860s to the 1920s many public records for the entire island were held at the Four Courts, Dublin. A fire in 1922 destroyed almost all the public records held at the Four Courts, including most of the 19th century census returns. In fact, the earliest complete census extant for Ireland is that of 1901, although PRONI holds a copy of only that part which relates to what is now Northern Ireland.
Despite a few idiosyncrasies, the people of Northern Ireland are a warm and friendly lot and, if you avoid the pitfalls, they will give you the traditional ‘hundred thousand welcomes’. Enjoy your visit.

The General Register Office (GRONI) is part of the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA) and is primarily concerned with the administration of the registration of births, deaths, marriages and civil partnerships. The registers themselves are not open to inspection, but information from them is supplied in the form of certificates. The GRONI does not engage in genealogical research although the records can contain valuable information for anyone compiling a family tree.

What information is available?

GRONI holds birth, death, marriage and adoption records. It also maintains a public search room where you can search computerised indexes. The index provides name, date and place of event.

Registration indexes held by GRONI include

- Births registered in Northern Ireland from 1 January 1864
- Deaths registered in Northern Ireland from 1 January 1864
- Non-Roman Catholic marriages from 1 April 1845 and all marriages from 1 January 1864.
- Adoptions recorded in the Adopted Children Register Northern Ireland from 1 January 1931.

Other records of births, deaths and marriages held:

- Service Department registers
- Marine register of births
- Marine register of deaths
- Consular returns of births
- Consular returns of deaths
- Foreign marriages
- High Commissioner's returns
- Consular returns of marriages
- War deaths
How do you apply for birth, death, marriage and civil partnership certificates?

You can apply in person, by telephone or fax, or on-line at www.nidirect.gov.uk/gro or by post to the General Register Office, NISRA, Colby House, Stranmillis Court, Belfast, BT9 5RR. Personal applications are processed within 3 working days and postal, telephone, fax and on-line applications are processed within 7 working days. Application forms are available from the General Register Office, District Registrars’ Offices, Citizens Advice Bureaux and PRONI or on-line.

Information required:

Birth Certificates Full name of person whose birth certificate is required. Date and place of birth. Names of parents (including mother's maiden name).

Marriage and Civil Partnership Certificates Full names of both parties (including bride’s maiden name). Date and place of marriage/civil death.

Death Certificates Full name of deceased. Date and place of death.

The GRONI can undertake a specific search provided they are given sufficient information about the person concerned. If the search is likely to be too time-consuming, the GRONI will not undertake the task. You will be expected to conduct the search personally or arrange for someone to search on your behalf.

Searches

General searching for can be carried out in person by anyone over 16 years of age.

Search only For each 5 year period or part of it the cost is £6.00.

Assisted Search General search of the records assisted by a member of GRO staff for any period of years and any number of entries. However there is a waiting list for this service and bookings must be made in advance. The cost is £35.00 per hour.
Index Search
The indexes up to the present have now been computerised and are available for searching for a period not exceeding 6 hours. Cost is £14.00. This includes two verifications with the option of further verifications at £4.00 each. Bookings are not required; however, we recommend that you book in advance during peak periods (e.g. June – August).

TRACING YOUR FAMILY TREE AT PRONI

USEFUL SOURCES

PRONI holds so much material that it can be very confusing for the first time user. This handout is designed to give a general overview of the most useful sources available. Individual information leaflets on a vast array of sources are available on-line on our website www.nidirect.gov.uk/proni and in the Search Room, free of charge, including all of the following:

STREET DIRECTORIES: These are printed books containing the name, address and occupation, of every householder in Belfast. They also give the names of the principal citizens in some of the larger towns in Northern Ireland. The earliest book is 1809, continuing, with gaps, up to the 1990s. The directories are not one hundred percent accurate because not everyone was included and, by the time they were printed, the information was already out of date. Directories from 1901 are available in the Search Room, while those pre-dating 1900 are available on the PRONI website.

CENSUS: The 1901 census gives the name, age, religion, occupation, and various other details on every individual in Northern Ireland. The 1911 census also gives the number of children born to a women and the number of children surviving. The information is usually very reliable. Both censuses are now available free on-line: www.nationalarchives.ie GRIFFITH’S VALUATION: This was compiled between 1856-1865 for taxation purposes. It gives the name of the householder, the name of the landlord, the size of the holding and the rateable value. It also gives the relevant Ordnance Survey map reference number. Listed by county and then within Poor Law Union by barony, parish and townland. Available on the Search Room shelves and for free on www.askaboutireland.com.

LANDED ESTATE RECORDS: Landowners were the major employers during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. The Guide to Landed Estates, available on the Search Room shelves, gives an alphabetical list of major landowners by county. Typical contents of estate archives include leases, rent rolls, rentals, wage books, maps and correspondence. Background information on the major estate owning families is also available on our website: see Major Sources in PRONI.
CHURCH RECORDS: Organised alphabetically by name of church, with a code for the various denominations (e.g. P = Presbyterian, CI = Church of Ireland, RC = Roman Catholic). Usually gives baptisms, marriages and burials and, occasionally, vestry minutes or similar material. PRONI does not hold records for every church – some are in local custody – nor are the dates consistent either over time or between churches. Consult the Guide to Church Records, available on-line and in the Search Room, for the relevant reference number. Most of the church records held by PRONI are available on microfilm in the Self-Service Microfilm area.

SCHOOL RECORDS: School registers usually provide the following information: name, address and age of child, name and occupation of father, religion and, sometimes, previous address. Some also give additional comments, eg, died, emigrated, now working for Harland & Wolff. All schools are listed under the SCH reference and can be found by entering the name of the school into our electronic catalogue, also available on our website.

WILLS: From 1858 probated wills became a matter of public record. A list of all wills probated is arranged firstly, by the year of probate (NOT the year of death) and then alphabetically by name of the deceased. As probate can take anything from six months to twenty-five years or more, it is best to start with the year of death and work forward. The will calendars and copy wills from 1858-1919 for the three District Probate Registries of Armagh, Belfast and Londonderry have been indexed and digitised. The index is now available on the PRONI website; with some wills being linked to images of the actual wills. Some earlier wills, which are classified as private records, are also available (see the Names Index on the website). Wills are extremely useful in tracing collateral branches of the family tree as bequests are often made to married daughters, grandchildren, cousins, nephews, etc., and give the names of the beneficiaries in full.

BOARDS OF GUARDIANS: The Boards of Guardians looked after the 28 workhouses in Northern Ireland. The admission books give the name, former address, occupation, marital status and religion of the inmates. Most of the records are closed for 100 years. However, conditional access may be possible (write to the Head of Access in the first instance). The records begin around 1838 and continue until the introduction of the Welfare State in 1948.

PEDIGREES/GENEALOLOGIES: Genealogy is a very popular hobby and many people have carried out research into their family tree that may, just maybe, interlink with your own tree. As these records, the result of private research, were donated by private individuals, PRONI has no control over their accuracy and cannot be held responsible for any inconsistencies. However, they are worth a look, just in case, though there is no substitute for carrying out your own research. Of particular interest are D/3000, T/1075 and T/808.
If you want to trace your family history back before civil registration began and there are no surviving church records then cemetery/burial ground/graveyard records might be a useful alternative source of information. PRONI’s Family History leaflets on Gravestone Inscriptions (No. 21) and Understanding the Stones (No. 22) outline the value of gravestone inscriptions to the family historian and list some of the printed and manuscript sources held in PRONI.

PRONI also holds registers of interments or burials, and of purchasers of graves for some cemeteries. Cemeteries are either maintained by local authorities or by churches. Some burial grounds have only been taken over by councils recently and so appear under the name of the council that currently maintain them. In many instances the records relate to local authorities (urban and rural district councils) that existed prior to 1972 and are listed below as such.

This leaflet outlines the records that are available in PRONI firstly for burial grounds maintained by local authorities in Northern Ireland and then for other burial grounds.
